

Mr. Osage Desk by Blockhorse Designs

In Roundup, Montana, award-winning artist Troy Evans works from his studio on his family's ranch. An appreciator of the artwork he grew up with, including medieval sculpture from Spain and masterwork paintings from the Italian Renaissance, he has translated these influences from the 14th and 15th century into his craft of furniture making. We love the winsomeness of this unique table, titled Mr. Osage, for its freedom of expression in sculptural form. Made from English brown oak, Osage orange, African mahogany and pear wood, with hand-forged iron elements, it's destined to be a conversation piece for its providential owner.

Chateau Domingue's Antique Lanterns

We were excited to discover Chateau Domingue, a fine source for architectural elements and antiques. The Chateau Domingue brand was crafted by Ruth Gay in Houston, Texas, and brings one-of-a-kind European-sourced fixtures and furnishings to the U.S. From mantels, doors, tiles, floors, lighting, hardware, furniture and garden décor from France, Belgium and across Europe, only the finest offerings are hunted, gathered and displayed for your perusal. If you are one who loves the warm glow of candlelight, Chateau Domingue's stock of 17th- and 19th-century antique lanterns range in size from small to grand and in shape from formal to fanciful. Though each iron lantern is similar in that it shares a pure European heritage.
